RFID

RFID (Radio Frequency IDentification) was developed for traceability and access applications more than 20 years ago. RFID allows automatic identification and / or collecting data to a computer without using the keyboard or pointing device. The basic goal is to eliminate errors and increase the speed of the identification process. It requires some form of back-end computer system that can receive and interpret the information received from the RFID chip.

RFID Asset Tracking

When properly developed and implemented, RFID asset tracking solutions for all industries help staff locate whatever and whoever they need instantly which is particularly useful for daily tasks or preventive maintenance for any type of capital or office equipment. With MTC RFID, businesses can effectively optimize assets utilization, improve asset flow, operational efficiency, and reduce cost.

RFID in Healthcare

The key benefits of RFID in Healthcare industry is the capacity to accurately monitor and track locations of visitors, staff, patients, and assets and their interactions.
